

Colours

The colours live between black and white,
In a land we know best by sight.

But knowing best isn't everything.
For colours dance, sing and laugh.
Turn off the light and colours die.

They make you feel every feeling
From the grumpiest grump to the fuzziest fuzz.
And you and I know well,
Each has a taste, a smell
And a wonderful story to tell.

By Emily